Jabulile Secondary Maths teacher wins prestigious award!

Hard work and passion have paid off for Xolani Mpisane, a dedicated Mathematics teacher from Jabulile Secondary, who helped his school secure Position 1 in the Johannesburg South District for the 2024 National Senior Certificate Mathematics results in Quintile 1-3 schools.

Mpisane (31), who hails from Ext 1 (eMshengu), developed a love for Maths back in high school when he saw his classmates struggling. "It was heartbreaking to see them battle with the subject, so I would stay behind after school to help. That's when I knew I wanted to teach Maths," he said. Though he initially pursued a BSc in Hydrology, which he completed in 2016, his passion for teaching never faded. In 2018, he went back to university to obtain a Postgraduate Certificate in Education, believing that "one's dream does not die while they are still alive." His teaching philosophy is rooted in behaviourism, where rewards motivate learners to perform better. "I encourage critical thinking and problem-solving, using real-world examples rather than just memorising formulas," he explained. The prestigious District Award was accepted on behalf of Jabulile Secondary by the school principal, Buhle Buthelezi and the SGB chairperson at a ceremony held at John Orr on 31 January. "It is an honour and privilege to be recognised for the hard work throughout 2024," Mpisane added.

Jabulile Secondary's principal, Buthelezi, praised Mpisane's efforts: "Winning Position 1 in the whole district has changed perceptions about Maths. It proves that success in the subject is achievable. I encourage parents to enrol their children here, where dedicated educators like Mpisane put learners first. His love for Maths and his commitment to our students is unmatched- he has put our school on the map we are very proud of his accomplishments."

From prison to a life of purpose

Image: Jabulani Silanda

NtalaDipichi is turning experience into empowerment, shaping a brighter future for the youth

Ext 10's Jabulani Silanda (28) known as NtalaDipichi, is a former gang member, ex-convict and mob justice survivor who has turned his life around.

Arrested at 18 in 2015, sentenced to six years for armed robbery in 2016, prison was a harsh reality-violence and near-death experiences made him reflect. His turning point came when his former gang broke into his home, held his mother and sister at gunpoint and stole from them instead of protecting them. That deeply hurt him, he realised then that it was time to change his ways. Determined to change, he reinvented himself as an artist, choreographer, event organiser, entrepreneur and motivational speaker, guiding youth through schools, soccer and awareness events. Reflecting on life in prison, he told OFN: "Prison was a nightmare; I nearly got stabbed several times because rival gang members thought I had ranks. I witnessed brutal fights, assaults and things that can break a person's mind. Jail is like another planet where survival is a daily battle. It can turn you into a monster if you're not strong. I thank God I made it out alive now I use my experience to empower my peers. My message to the youth-listen to your parents; their wisdom can't be taught in school. Choose your friends wisely because 'birds of a the same feather flock together'. Stay away from crime and this obsession with prison numbers-it leads nowhere good." "In life, we must be wise-some people don't want to see us succeed due to past grudges or their own failures. But we can't blame the environment for our choices. Every challenge comes with a choice: right or wrong. Life is like a journey in a car-you're responsible for the direction you take," he added.

Steve Biko Primary hosts 'Be a Buddy, Not a Bully' campaign

Images: Steve Biko

Karabo, a dedicated social worker from the Department of Social Development and SAPS members empowering learners with crucial insights on bullying

On 20 February, the school hosted a powerful anti-bullying event under the theme Be a Buddy, Not a Bully, aimed at fostering a safe and inclusive environment for students and staff. Various stakeholders took the stage, including SAPS, Social Development, Crime Prevention and others. Social worker Sungulane Ndlovu, spoke about child abuse, children's rights and responsibilities and the vital role of Childline, where she is based at the Areakopaneng offices.

While SAPS Sergeant Modise warned learners about bullying and its consequences. Thokozane Maringa, deputy chairperson of Orange Farm's Department of Crime Prevention, broke down the meaning of bullying with real-life examples. Meanwhile, social workers Thandiswa and Karabo from the Department of Social Development reminded students that bullying is a criminal offence. They urged learners to support one another and be voices for the voiceless.

The event also showcased creative expressions from Grade 7 students, who performed powerful anti-bullying poems and danced in celebration of a bullying-free environment. The school principal Nelson Mukhufhi expressed gratitude to all attendees and reinforced the importance of respect and responsibility in creating a positive school culture. This initiative underscored the collective effort needed from schools, parents and the community to eradicate bullying and protect learners.

Merchants of Light donates school shoes to Isiboniso Primary

Images: Mbali Nqubuka

Beaming with joy! happy learners proudly show off their shoes, ready to step into a bright future!

In a heartwarming gesture of generosity, Merchants of Light donated over 200 pairs of school shoes, socks and hygiene care packs for girls to learners at Isiboniso Primary on 12 February.

This thoughtful contribution was part of the Merchants of Light School Drive, aimed at supporting the educational journey of these young students.

Catherine Constantinides and Ella Bella, who have worked in the community for over 20 years, have donated thousands of school shoes to children in need- not just at Isiboniso but also in Lenasia South and across Orange Farm.

Since the start of the school year, many children have been walking a new journey of hope and dignity. With support from corporates, community members, angel donors, friends and family, Merchants of Light has provided school shoes, uniforms, stationery packs, grocery hampers and hygiene care packs.

During the week of this drive, over 500 children received a brand-new pair of shoes. Catherine shared: "We may not be able to change these children's situations long-term, but we can give them hope and show them that they are loved and cared for. There's nothing better than walking in a new pair of shoes-shoes that can steer you in a new, positive and hopeful direction."

Isiboniso Primary's management expressed their gratitude: "Many of our learners had no shoes or were wearing torn shoes. This donation made a huge difference and we are truly grateful."

Tom and Jerry launch dance academy

Image: Sanele Radebe

These two dancers are empowering youth through dance

Sanele Radebe and Siphokuhle Mkhwanazi, known as Tom and Jerry, have opened a dance academy aimed at empowering young people through dance and education. Team Sanele Academy introduces an innovative approach where academic excellence and artistic passion go hand in hand.

The academy offers homework assistance every Thursday, Friday and Saturday, supported by dedicated tutors. Learners also gain access to a fully equipped computer room, helping them bridge the digital divide and develop essential skills. Beyond academics, Team Sanele Academy provides a state-of-the-art dance studio where aspiring performers can showcase their talents.

Regular performances and events help students gain experience and build confidence in their craft.

"We want to give our peers opportunities beyond just dance. This is about helping them grow, both in their education and their artistic abilities," said Sanele Radebe.

Registration is now open! For a once-off registration fee of R200 and a monthly fee of R100, children can join this vibrant community.

The academy has exciting plans ahead, including its first major event on 5 April and a dance tour to Mpumalanga in May, where dancers, singers and performers will showcase their skills. Dance classes are led by 201TomandJerry, celebrated TikTok dancers known for their electrifying moves and expert guidance.

For more info, call 074 512 2845 or DM @sanele_sanele & @201TomandJerry on all social media platforms.

Ke Moja Fridays Social Development fights drug addiction in Evaton West and Palm Springs

Images: Department of Social Development

Social Development representatives engaging with attendees, offering vital information

On Friday, 14 February, Gauteng Social Development MEC Faith Mazibuko took the fight against drug abuse to the community of Evaton in Sedibeng.

This is part of the Gauteng Department of Social Development anti-drug campaign Ke Moja Fridays. The campaign seeks to enlighten and inform communities about the harmful effects of substance abuse. It also seeks to sensitise the public, particularly young people, about the harmful effects of alcohol and drug abuse. Ensure that different stakeholders participate in the fight against alcohol and drug abuse. Provide information to the community on available resources and support systems regarding substance abuse and communities to take action in combating alcohol and drug abuse.

The department, as the lead in the field of substance abuse, is also mandated by the Prevention of and Treatment for Substance Abuse Act, Act No. 70 of 2008, to provide for the establishment of programs and intervention in response to the scourge. The area is besieged by a number of social ills, such as unemployment, poverty, substance abuse and the trading of illicit drugs.

The campaign included state departments such as Home Affairs, Labour, SASSA, NDA and Emfuleni Local Council, as well as non-profit organisations, as they extend services and offer assistance to those who wish to overcome addiction and the community that is seeking access to government services.

Orange Farm's top achievers win big at Engen Maths & Science School Awards

The Zakariyya Park Engen Maths and Science Schools (EMSS) centre has once again delivered outstanding matric results, reaffirming the programme's commitment to academic excellence and youth empowerment.

Engen hosted the awards ceremony at Zakariyya Park Secondary School on 15 February, honouring these exceptional learners for their hard work and dedication. For over 35 years, EMSS has provided free supplementary education at 10 centres nationwide, equipping young South Africans with the skills to pursue careers in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM). "While Engen is extremely proud of all the 2024 matriculants, I must make special mention of, and commend, the incredible results attained by our top achievers," adds MdBula.

Empowering South Africa's Future

"Engen is immensely proud of our Gauteng matriculants, especially our top achievers who have shown resilience and commitment to academic excellence," says Olwethu MdBula, Engen's CSI Manager. "Their success highlights the transformative impact of quality education in shaping lives and driving South Africa's skills development agenda." -Story and pics: EMSS

Future Engineer: Amandla Ngubo's journey to success

Amandla Ngubo, a former learner at Leshata Secondary, achieved an impressive 85% for both Mathematics and Physical Sciences.

His hard work and dedication have earned him a place at the University of Cape Town, where he is studying Civil Engineering—one step closer to his dream of owning a construction company.

Amandla's success story is deeply intertwined with his experience at the Engen Maths and Science School (EMSS), which he attended at the Zakariyya Park centre from Grade 10. "EMSS assisted me with my revision and helped improve my marks," he explains. "EMSS really makes a difference."

The Engen Maths and Science School programme has been empowering talented South African youth for over 35 years by offering free supplementary education in Mathematics, Science, and English. With a mission to nurture academic excellence and address South Africa's critical skills shortage, the programme currently accommodates 1,500 learners annually at 10 centres nationwide. These centres are located in Cape Town (x2), the Eastern Cape (x3), Johannesburg, and KwaZulu-Natal (x4).

Engen's CSI Manager, Olwethu MdBula, highlighted the importance of the programme. "The EMSS focuses on gateway subjects to help learners access opportunities in STEM fields and contribute to South Africa's economic growth. Amandla's success is a shining example of how the programme transforms lives and empowers learners to achieve their dreams."

Despite his academic success, Amandla's journey was not without challenges. Living in Tjovito Drieziek 10 with his stepmother while his mother remained in KwaZulu-Natal, he faced financial difficulties that made it hard to travel to school regularly. "There were times when I didn't have money for transport and coping with the pressure of matric was tough," he admits. However, his resilience and commitment to his studies kept him going. "My academics kept me focused, and I knew that education was my way forward."

MdBula emphasised Engen's commitment to supporting learners, particularly those facing socio-economic challenges, by bridging educational gaps and empowering them for brighter futures. "Our focus on quality education aligns with the UN's Sustainable Development Goal 4, which seeks to ensure inclusive and equitable learning opportunities for all," she said. Now, as he embarks on his tertiary education, Amandla remains motivated by his ambition to build a successful future in the construction industry. "I want to establish my own construction company and contribute to the development of our country," he says with determination.

To the current matriculants, Amandla offers words of encouragement: "Work hard, stay focused, and make use of all the resources available to you—especially EMSS. It can truly help you achieve your goals."

His story is a testament to perseverance, the power of education and the impact of programmes like EMSS in shaping South Africa's future leaders.

Mahlatse Masekane: A story of resilience and academic excellence

Seventeen-year-old Mahlatse Masekane, a proud matriculant of Leshata Secondary has proven that perseverance and hard work lead to success.

With four distinctions, including an impressive 87% for Mathematics and 84% for Physical Science, Mahlatse is well on his way to a promising future.

He has been accepted to the University of Cape Town to pursue a BSc in Computer Science with Computer Engineering, bringing him closer to his dream of becoming a data scientist and quantitative analyst in one of South Africa's top banks. Mahlatse's journey to academic excellence was not without challenges. Growing up in a family of seven, with his father as the sole breadwinner, financial constraints often made it difficult to access essential study materials.

He recalls struggling to afford transport for Saturday classes and even going three years without electricity in his area, making studying at night nearly impossible. Despite these hardships, he remained determined.

A significant part of his success, he says, was thanks to the Engen Maths and Science School (EMSS) in Zakariyya Park, which he joined in Grade 10.

"The excellent teachers provided critical exam tips and guided us on what to expect, particularly with the style of questioning," he explains. He highly recommends the programme, praising the high-quality materials and additional support that helped him prepare for his exams.

For over 35 years, the EMSS programme has provided free supplementary education in Mathematics, Science, and English to talented South African youth. Currently, it supports 1,500 learners annually across 10 centres nationwide, helping address South Africa's critical skills shortage.

Engen's CSI Manager, Olwethu MdBula, emphasised the programme's impact. "EMSS focuses on gateway subjects, enabling learners to access STEM opportunities and contribute to South Africa's economic growth. Mahlatse success is a testament to how education transforms lives."

Matric was not without its difficulties—Mahlatse fell ill during his prelims and struggled without a dedicated study space. However, his resilience and belief in a better future kept him going. Inspired by motivational speaker Les Brown's catchphrase, "It's possible," he remains steadfast in his aspirations.

Engen will honour top-performing EMSS learners at a series of awards ceremonies in February. "We are incredibly proud of Caden and all our learners. Their achievements highlight the power of hard work and quality education in shaping South Africa's future," MdBula, added.

Computer Science beckons for EMSS achiever, Khoabane

Khoabane Junior Khoabane, an alumnus of Leshata Secondary has always believed that nothing worthwhile in life comes easy.

Through hard work and discipline, he achieved outstanding matric results, securing 82% for Mathematics and 83% for Physical Science. With a passion for technology, he plans to pursue a degree in Computer Science this year. His journey was not without challenges, but his determination and the support he received along the way helped him succeed.

Khoabane attended the Engen Maths and Science School (EMSS) in Zakariyya Park, where extra lessons played a crucial role in his final exam preparations. "EMSS gave me greater exposure to effective teaching methods and helped me approach complex questions with confidence. The stationery we received also assisted in my preparation," he says. He highly recommends the programme to other learners, highlighting the additional support and knowledge it provides.

For over 35 years, the EMSS programme has provided free supplementary education in Mathematics, Science and English to talented South African youth. Currently, it supports 1 500 learners annually across 10 centres nationwide, helping address South Africa's critical skills shortage. Engen's CSI Manager, Olwethu MdBula, emphasised the programme's impact. "EMSS focuses on gateway subjects, enabling learners to access STEM opportunities and contribute to South Africa's economic growth. Khoabane's success is a testament to how education transforms lives."

Growing up in Orange Farm, Khoabane faced various obstacles, including limited resources that affected his academic performance in earlier years. However, he remained focused, determined to overcome these challenges. "The most difficult part of matric was having to compromise on the subjects I love in order to balance everything," he admits.

Fortunately, his supportive mother was by his side throughout his journey, encouraging him every step of the way. Khoabane's philosophy in life is simple yet powerful: "Don't think you have time; it's always moving, so you have to move with it." He stays motivated by exercising, listening to good music, and watching motivational videos. His ultimate dream is to earn a degree, secure a job he loves, and live the life he has always envisioned for himself. However, he also acknowledges the challenges of an evolving world, particularly the rapid advancement of artificial intelligence, which he fears may limit job opportunities in the future. MdBula reaffirmed Engen's commitment to supporting learners, especially those facing socio-economic challenges, by bridging educational gaps and empowering them for brighter futures. "Our focus on quality education aligns with the UN's Sustainable Development Goal 4, ensuring inclusive and equitable learning opportunities for all," she noted. To the 2025 matriculants, Khoabane offers words of wisdom: "Nothing comes easy in life, so you have to work hard and stay disciplined to achieve your goals." With his resilience and unwavering determination, he is well on his way to turning his dreams into reality. Engen will honour top-performing EMSS learners at a series of awards ceremonies in February. "We are incredibly proud of Caden and all our learners. Their achievements highlight the power of hard work and quality education in shaping South Africa's future," concluded MdBula.

Chris Hani Sports Complex moves closer to transforming into a centre of excellence

Image and Story: COJ

This cutting-edge complex is steadily advancing towards Region G's vision of becoming a much needed sports hub

The Chris Hani Sports Complex in Orange Farm is progressing towards its vision of being a hub for sporting excellence, talent development and community empowerment.

Located in the Stretford District Node, the complex is set to redefine sports infrastructure in the region. Implemented by the Johannesburg Development Agency (JDA) on behalf of the City of Johannesburg's Community Development Department, this project exemplifies the City's commitment to building resilient, sustainable, and vibrant urban areas.

"The Chris Hani Sports Complex has been designed to provide Olympic-standard facilities and an integrated sports precinct that prioritises sustainability, accessibility and multifunctionality..." City of

Johannesburg

Key elements of the design approach include:

- Integrated Design: Combining architecture, landscape architecture, and placemaking for a cohesive precinct.
- Community Focus: Defined links, clear entrances, and improved surrounding public environments to integrate with the local context.
- Sustainability: Incorporating energy generation, water harvesting, and efficient construction methodologies.
- Future-Proof Facilities: Accommodating sports specialists, technical and coaching staff, while also providing spaces for broadcasting, revenue generation, and commercial opportunities.
- Olympic Standards: Ensuring all facilities meet international and local codes.

The project has already achieved several key construction milestones:

- Soccer Field: 90% complete.
- Grandstand: 70% complete.
- Stormwater Reticulation: 88% complete.
- Multipurpose Courts: 62% complete.
- Boundary Wall: 60% complete.
- Outdoor Gym: 51% complete.

The complex development will drive socio-economic growth, with 15 local SMMEs engaged, employing 47 residents, including 22 youth and three women. This aligns with the JDA's commitment to fostering the development of local business empowerment. In addition to sporting facilities, the Chris Hani Sports Complex includes upgrades to Moyane Drive and 16th Street. These improvements will feature safe pedestrian crossings, paved sidewalks, street furniture, bins, benches, lighting, trader stalls and soft landscaping, enhancing the overall public environment. JDA CEO Themba Mathibe expressed enthusiasm about the progress stating: "The Chris Hani Sports Complex embodies the JDA's vision of creating spaces that are not only functional but also inspire community pride and support talent development. We are thrilled to see this project taking shape and we are confident it will serve as a cornerstone for sporting excellence in Orange Farm." Once completed, the Chris Hani Sports Complex will be a catalyst for youth development, sports excellence, and community upliftment in the Stretford District Node, providing a space where the next generation of sporting talent can thrive.

Drieziek 4's Ajax18 is riding high on confidence after a dominant 7-0 victory over Black Seven Football fans were treated to an exciting weekend of action in the OFLFA Super League as matches continued at the Multipurpose Ground in Ext 4.

The weekend of 15-16 February saw thrilling performances, with teams battling for supremacy on the pitch.

On Saturday, Nathi Stars played to a 1-1 draw against Benfica in a tightly contested match.

Ajax18 dominated their game against Black Seven, securing a resounding 7-0 victory.

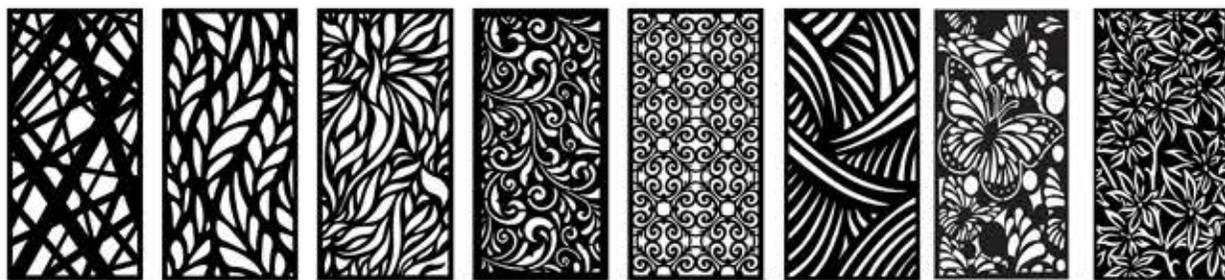

Juventus proved too strong for AZ Ramblers, winning 4-2, while Future Academy claimed a solid 2-0 victory over Kweneng.

Sunday's fixtures saw Young Tigers awarded a 2-0 walkover win against City Rockers, while Nathi Stars bounced back from their draw with a 4-2 triumph over TLC.

Blue Wheels also won by walkover, taking a 2-0 victory against BSA. In the final clash of the weekend, Benfica stunned Juventus with a commanding 4-0 win.

With such intense competition, teams will be looking to build on their performances as the season progresses. With the league in full swing, OFLFA appeals to individuals and businesses willing to support the development of local football.

OFLFA secretary, Patrick Mokwena, said: "The Super League continues to showcase talent and passion, promising more exciting matches in the coming weeks. We are appealing to those who want to help our league grow to contact me on 068 526 0129. Sports keep youth off the streets away from drugs, crime and other bad influences. We will really appreciate your assistance."
