Sithole breaks body stereotype!

Drieziek 5's Emerald Nokwethemba Sithole has stepped into the spotlight after being named finalist in Miss Curvylicious SA 2026 - a platform she is using to confront body shaming and challenge beauty stereotypes affecting women across communities.

Sithole, mother of two and a self-employed nail technician, says her participation has grown into a broader message of confidence, identity and empowerment, particularly for plus-size women who often face stigma around body image.

In many communities body stigma and unrealistic beauty standards continue to affect the confidence and self-image of women. She believes the pageant offers an opportunity to shift beauty standards and encourage women to embrace themselves without shame.

"For me this is not just about the title. Being thick is not an illness or something to be ashamed of. I want women to embrace their beauty and stop hiding," Sithole told OFN. She says her journey in the competition has been both challenging and empowering, pushing her beyond her comfort zone while strengthening her sense of purpose. "When I started, my goal was simply to step out of my comfort zone."

Every step journey taught me resilience and the has shaped me into a more confident and more purpose-driven women," she added. With finals ahead Sithole told OFN that she is focused on using the platform to inspire self-love, uplift young people and continue making a meaningful impact in the community.

Imbewu: Seeds of creativity

Young learners enjoy creative activities at the launch of the Imbewu - Arts for Early Learning Project

Children from Little Angels Day Care Centre and Masibambane Day Care Centre celebrated the International Day of Play through the launch of the Imbewu - Arts for Early Learning Project, an initiative by Struggles Theatre Productions.

The programme uses arts and play-based activities, including storytelling, music, dance and creative expression, to support early childhood development and make arts education more accessible in local ECD centres and schools. A marimba performance by Ratsekga Production added excitement to the launch. Struggles Theatre Productions directors Nonkululeko Khoza and Nomusa Madondo said the project aims to nurture creativity, confidence and communication skills while creating opportunities for local artists. The year-long programme will reach children across Orange Farm through drama, music, visual arts, storytelling and creative play activities.

God Loves You!

Pst. Jim Mofokeng, King of Glory Chapel. 062 184 6956

John 3:16

"For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish but have everlasting life."

Some people think God loves them less than others, but that is not true. God's love is equal for all. He sent Jesus to die for everyone, not just certain groups. Just because things may seem to be going better for others doesn't mean God loves you less or favors them more. God loves you deeply and unconditionally. What makes the difference is how you receive His love.

You must understand that God loves you just as you are - you don't have to earn His love. He chose to love you despite your flaws, not holding your sins against you. To accept His love, first accept His Son, Jesus Christ, into your heart as your Lord and Savior, and believe in what He has done for you on the cross.

Prayer: "Heavenly Father, in Jesus' name, thank You for loving me unconditionally. Thank You for Your grace and favor upon me and my family. I know You love me as I am, and there is nothing I can do to earn Your love - because You've already chosen to love me just the way I am. Amen."

Education and school safety concerns raised at Orange Farm engagement

MEC Maile listens to Orange Farm's concerns on school safety, learner support and curriculum challenges during this Community Engagement

Gauteng MEC for Education, Sport, Arts, Culture and Recreation, Lebogang Maile, met with Orange Farm residents during the 'It Takes a Village to Raise a Child' community meeting at Ext 1 Uniting Reformed Church, on 12 June, following unannounced visits to Orange Farm schools. MEC Maile noted challenges at Aha-Thuto Secondary School. "Despite achieving a 79.6% matric pass rate, the school continues to face instability in curriculum delivery," he said. Thetha Secondary was praised for achieving a 98.9% matric pass rate despite community instability and gang-related violence. At the engagement, community members raised concerns about school safety, learner support and parental involvement. Brenda, an SGB member from Thamsanqa, said, "Security is not available in our schools. We need tighter security to protect learners and educators." A representative from Solve It Africa highlighted the shortage of support professionals, saying, "The Department fails to allocate social workers and psychologists, yet many learners need this support." Puleng Mokoena, Chairperson of Duzenendelela, expressed concern about the future of learners with special needs. "Some of our alumni are loitering around Orange Farm. Some end up smoking drugs because they do not receive adequate support after leaving school," she said. School safety emerged as a key issue, with concerns raised about bullying, gangsterism and the intimidation of teachers by learners. One community member also linked gangsterism to illegal initiation schools, arguing that some initiation schools contribute to criminal behaviour among young people. She called for initiation school leaders to be educated on proper protocols and regulations. Dona's Mates founder, James Tshabangu, highlighted sport as a powerful tool for social change. Masixole Boka urged the department to recognise community intervention programmes such as STG.

"We couldn't leave him like this"

ATM's Hon. Vuyolwethu Zungula hands over the newly-renovated house keys to an excited Benjamin Sefuli

A Drieziek 4 resident, Benjamin Sefuli, is finally living in a completed house after the African Transformation Movement (ATM) and community stakeholders joined forces to finish his long-unfinished RDP home.

The project was launched after ATM members identified the poor living conditions and mobilised donations to complete the structure. Ward 4 ATM councillor candidate Khonzaphi Mbele said: "We saw that the RDP house was not yet done, so we looked for donations through OFN and support through ATM. That is how the house was finally completed." During the handover, ATM leader Hon. Vuyolwethu Zungula called for stronger local government involvement in addressing community needs. Residents welcomed the initiative, saying it restored dignity to Sefuli and demonstrated the power of community-

Stredford CHC launches twice-yearly HIV prevention injection this month

Health officials at the Stredford CHC campaign rollout, offering a convenient alternative to daily PrEP tablets while strengthening HIV prevention efforts

Residents of Orange Farm are being encouraged to use Lenacapavir, a new long-acting HIV prevention injection launched at Stredford Community Health Centre (CHC) on 9 June. Unlike daily PrEP tablets, Lenacapavir is administered only twice a year, making it a convenient option for people who struggle to take medication consistently. The first recipient, pregnant mother Sizakele Shabalala, welcomed the treatment. "There was only a little pain during the injection, but it did not last long. It has not affected my pregnancy in any way," she said.

Sr Samkelisiwe Zwane said the injection could help strengthen HIV prevention efforts. "Many people forget to take their medication every day. This injection provides a convenient option because it is administered only twice a year," she said. Nthabiseng Kekana, a PATA representative supporting the rollout, reminded residents that the injection only protects against HIV. "People still need to use condoms and practise safe sex to protect themselves from other sexually transmitted infections," she said. The rollout forms part of efforts to expand HIV prevention services and improve access to healthcare in Orange Farm.

DJ Ndofire claims 'Clash of the Regions' win

A proud moment as 'Clash of the Regions' champ rejoice well-earned win after impressing with skills and confidence

Years of practice finally paid off for Ext 3's DJ Ndofire, who was crowned winner of the Clash of the Regions competition after outperforming a strong field of contestants.

The competition brought together talented DJs from different regions, each showcasing their unique style and skill behind the decks. Despite the tough competition, Ndofire delivered a standout performance that secured him the top spot. He admitted he did not expect the win. "I feel so happy. I never thought I would be here. I thought I would be number two because the competition was very tight and every DJ was very good. Representing Region G as the only DJ was a big thing for me. I just gave it my all and enjoyed myself," said Ndofire. For him, the victory is more than a trophy - it is recognition of years of hard work, dedication and belief in his craft. Ndofire also thanked his supporters. "I would also like to thank the people from Orange Farm who came to support me," he said. The win marks a major milestone in his career and could open doors to greater opportunities in the music industry as he looks ahead to the next chapter.

Success is sounding sweeter for the Mphethi Mahlatsi School Choir after its first-placed finish at the SASCE Regional Competition. Next stop: Provincials

Mphethi Mahlatsi Choir marches to provincials after regional victory

Months of hard work and dedication paid off when the Mphethi Mahlatsi Choir claimed first place at the SASCE Regional Competition, securing a spot at the provincial championships in Daveyton on 19 June.

The victory marks a major breakthrough for the choir, which had previously finished in second and third place in past competitions. Choir conductor Bongani Maphanga praised the learners for their dedication and hard work. "We are proud of what the learners have achieved. They remained focused and committed, and their efforts paid off," he said. Maphanga said the regional title is only the beginning, with the choir now setting its sights on provincial success and a place at the national championships. "Our journey is not over. We are preparing for the next stage and will continue working hard to make our school and community proud," he said. The choir's achievement has been celebrated by the school community, which will be rallying behind the talented young singers as they take on some of Gauteng's best choirs at the provincial competition.

Orange Farm Library marks 50 years of June 16 legacy

Attendees during the 50th anniversary commemoration of June 16 held at Orange Farm Library in Ext 6b

Young people, community leaders and stakeholders gathered at the Orange Farm Library on 10 June to commemorate the 50th anniversary of June 16 under the theme "Honouring the Past, Engineering the Future: The Current Frontier Spirit."

The programme reflected on the sacrifices of the 1976 generation while encouraging youth to take an active role in shaping the future. It opened with a presentation on the City of Johannesburg's digital transformation services, aimed at bridging the digital divide. Deon Mhlongo from the Department of Employment and Labour encouraged young people to use labour centres for CV writing, job applications and career support. Former convict Joseph Matshila warned against drug and substance abuse, while anti-apartheid activist Phillip Moloto urged youth to become active leaders in their communities. A performance by Clean-Touch NPO, featuring Sarafina!, added to the commemoration, while a youth dialogue highlighted issues such as unemployment, inequality and substance abuse. Orange Farm Library assistant director Sapna Ragunanan said the event was about both remembrance and inspiring youth to embrace leadership and innovation.

FEATURE ENTERTAINMENT

Spitfire Rabaji builds youth creative empire

Surprise Rabaji, known as Spitfire Rabaji (The Boss Lady), is a 22-year-old Orange Farm-based fashion model, creative director, artist manager and event coordinator using her platform to empower young creatives through her company Youth-Anthic Space.

Her journey began with the We Go Vintage movement in Soweto in February 2024, followed by her runway debut at The Leak Fashion Show in November 2024. She later worked with the team for a year before securing a Wimpy advertisement shoot alongside Gala Noir. Rabaji has since focused on building her own creative ecosystem, hosting Creatives Meet & Art in July, which gave underground artists exposure and industry connections. Her second event in September expanded into a multi-genre music experience featuring diverse talent. She says her mission is to prove that access is not about money, but mindset. "You don't need a lot of money to start - what you need is consistency, vision and courage," she said.

Mvelo develops unique sound through early musical journey

Ext 6b's Jonathan Mvelo Nkonyane is steadily carving out his own space in music, drawing from years of experimentation, early passion, and creative exploration.

Raised in Orange Farm, Mvelo developed an interest in music at a young age, showing a natural ear for rhythm through dancing and rapping. His journey began at the age of 13, when he first started exploring music more seriously, inspired by various artists across different genres. Over the years, Nkonyane has continued to refine his craft by studying and emulating his influences before gradually shifting focus toward developing a distinct sound of his own. He says the process is still ongoing as he experiments with different styles and approaches in search of originality. "I am still trying to find and build my own sound through constant experimenting and learning from different styles of music," Mvelo told OFN.

Shordy releases debut single

Busisiwe "Shordy" Nyembe, a vocalist from Orange Farm, has officially launched her debut single, released on 5 June and now available on YouTube, Spotify, Apple Music, Facebook, Instagram and TikTok.

The launch marks her entry into the music industry as she begins building her presence as an independent artist. The song is already circulating on social media as she uses digital platforms to reach wider audiences and grow her fan base. Speaking to OFN Shordy says the project is an important milestone in her journey. "This is my first official release and I'm excited for people to finally hear my sound," she said. She encourages the public to stream and share the track.

Building from pain to fashion brand!

Drieziek 4 entrepreneur Sakhile Khowane (29) has turned personal grief into a growing fashion brand, Ushuni Wokotini, inspired by his life experiences and township identity.

After losing both parents, Khowane chose to rebuild his life through creativity and business, using fashion as a form of expression and healing.

"After my parents passed, life told me, 'It's over.' I told myself, there is still a life for me, so I chose it," he said. The brand, offers caps, hoodies, vests and signature navy suede penny loafers with gold embroidery, reflecting humble beginnings and working-class pride. Khowane says the aim is to create clothing that tells township stories while inspiring young people not to be limited by their background.

Ushuni Wokotini products are available nationwide through Pep Paxi delivery services.

Crochet business stitches path to success

What began as a simple clothing alteration has grown into Beauty La' Crochet, a handmade crochet business founded by Onneile Kgosiejang.

The idea took shape after a crochet top made by her mother attracted attention on Facebook, leading to customer orders. As demand grew, Onneile learned the craft and began creating her own designs. Determined to create opportunities for herself, she turned her passion into a business and has since used it to empower others. In 2025, she sponsored matric dance dresses for two young women and is looking to support more learners this year. Despite challenges in building a customer base, Onneile continued refining her skills and promoting her work online. Her dedication earned her a feature on the SABC 1 programme Trends Live after showcasing at Bram Fashion Week. She hopes to expand Beauty La' Crochet into a sustainable business that creates jobs and equips young people with crochet skills. Kgosiejang told OFN: "Start with what you have and keep developing your skills. A small beginning can grow into something bigger than you ever imagined."

Green roots growing opportunities

Members of Ibandla Green Roots, dedicated to promoting sustainable agriculture, skills development and community empowerment

Ibandla Green Roots is helping communities tackle food insecurity, unemployment and environmental challenges through sustainable agriculture and skills development.

The cooperative offers services such as seedling production, plant propagation, vegetable and herb nurseries, tree planting, lawn maintenance, garden clean-ups, paving and outdoor beautification projects. Director Phuphuma Lesego Eugene said the organisation aims to create opportunities while improving the environment. "We want to empower residents with practical skills that can help them build better futures for themselves and their families," he said. Driven by values of integrity, innovation and excellence, Ibandla Green Roots works with communities and partners to promote greener spaces, strengthen food security and support sustainable development.

Morning grind, umphando wempela

Sifiso Madondo is turning early mornings into opportunity by selling affordable breakfast sandwiches around Eyethu Mall.

From 6am to 11am daily, Madondo moves through the busy area serving commuters, workers and students with sandwiches priced between R10 and R20, filled with eggs, cheese, polony, viennas and Russian sausages.

He started the business after struggling to find employment, choosing a different source of income. "With unemployment being so high, I decided to start something for myself, which will be legal and not leaving out of people sweat which might land me in jail," Madondo told OFN.

His mobile approach allows him to reach a wide range of customers during the morning rush, helping him build a steady base of regular buyers through affordable food.

Ghetto Life turns township reality into streetwear identity

Orange Farm streetwear brand, Ghetto Life, is turning township culture into a bold fashion statement rooted in pride, resilience and creativity.

Founded in 2025 by Mokete Molapise, known as Thola, the brand was created to challenge negative portrayals of township life and instead highlight its true reality - hustle, community, music and street style. "The name isn't about glorifying struggle. It's about owning it and showing what actually exists inside it," said Thola. Ghetto Life produces heavyweight T-shirts, hoodies and track pants designed for everyday wear, with limited drops of 20 to 30 pieces to maintain exclusivity. Inspired by Orange Farm's culture, the designs feature local slang, house music influences and familiar community references. The brand also collaborates with local artists, barbers and DJs to keep creativity and opportunity within the township economy.

Orange Farm netball queens conquer Gauteng, advance to nationals

Image: Supplied

This victorious netball team celebrate after they claim the championship, securing their place at the national stage following their hard-fought win

Gauteng Ubuntu champions, Thamsanqa Secondary School, defeated Tswelopele Secondary School 22-21 in a thrilling DSTV Schools Netball Challenge provincial final that went into extra time from 14-15 June at Hoërskool Florida in Roodeport.

The victory secured the Orange Farm school's place at the national finals, which will run from 23 to 25 July at Hoërskool Dr E.G. Jansen in Boksburg.

In a match that kept spectators on the edge of their seats, neither side was able to gain a decisive advantage during regulation time, forcing the final into extra time. Thamsanqa ultimately held their nerve to claim the one-point victory and lift the provincial trophy. The DSTV Schools Netball Challenge, powered by Bestmed Medical Scheme, is South Africa's premier schools netball competition and serves as a platform for identifying and developing future national players. Thamsanqa will be joined by Tswelopele

Secondary School and Tholulwazi Secondary School as Gauteng's representatives in the Ubuntu division at the national finals. Speaking to Orange Farm News, school principal Wilikas Maleba described the achievement as a proud moment for the school and the community. "We are very proud of our learners for winning the Gauteng championship. This achievement is a result of hard work, discipline and commitment from the players and the technical team. We would also like to thank coach Precious Nchabeleng and Mphelo for their dedication and contribution to the team's success," Maleba said. He added that the school hopes the team can build on its success and continue making Orange Farm proud at the national tournament. The Gauteng title marks one of the biggest sporting achievements for the school and further highlights the growing talent emerging from Orange Farm.
